Do firms benefit from apprenticeship investments? Why spending on occupational skills can yield economic returns to employers

Keywords: training, skills, apprenticeship

AUTHOR'S MAIN MESSAGE

Apprenticeship training is usually a profitable investment for firms as well as workers. Often, firms can recoup all or most of their costs within the apprenticeship period. By providing firms with information on economic returns, by helping them set up apprenticeships, and by funding off-site training, policymakers can promote the expansion of effective career training and increased worker earnings with only modest public expenditures.
